ZANZIBAR ELECTORAL COMMISSION

CODE OF CONDUCT FOR STATE-OWNED MEDIA DURING THE 2010 ZANZIBAR GENERAL ELECTION CAMPAIGNS

INTRODUCTION:

The right to vote has been stipulated in provisions of various Zanzibar election laws. The 1984 Constitution of Zanzibar has, to a large extent, taken into account the requirements of the International Convention on Civil and Political Rights on electoral matters.

Article 21 (1) of the Zanzibar Constitution stipulates that “every Zanzibari has the right to participate in national leadership either directly or indirectly through a freely elected representative.”

Sub-section 2 of the same Article clarifies that “every Zanzibari has both the right and freedom to participate in arriving at decisions on matters that affect him/her or the nation.”

Such participation as stipulated in that Article shall be undertaken through an election whose conduct is outlined in the election laws which are enshrined in the 1984 Constitution.

UNOFFICIAL TRANSLATION

In line with the Constitution, the Zanzibar Electoral Commission has been entrusted with the responsibility of overseeing the conduct of all elections, monitoring them and providing voters' education.

The Constitution also empowers each Zanzibari with freedom of opinion which encompasses the right to receive any information from any official organ without hindrance to such communication. Moreover, each Zanzibari is entitled to receive reports of various events that take place within the country or across the globe as these are crucial to the lives and activities of the people.

The Election Act stipulates that each election candidate, agent or political party has the right to undertake electoral campaigns prior to the election.

In recognition of those realities, the Election Act No. 11 of 1984, Article 91 (2) empowers the Zanzibar Electoral Commission with the duty of issuing a Code of Conduct for State-Owned Media Organs on how to carry out their activities during the official election campaign period.

The major aim of this legal provision is to provide political parties taking part in the elections with a mechanism of presenting their policies to the electorate in view of the fact that media coverage of those organs is aimed at conveying their message to a huge audience.

CODE OF CONDUCT BY THE ZANZIBAR ELECTORAL COMMISSION FOR THE 2010 GENERAL ELECTIONS

The Code of Conduct for the 2010 General Elections has been designed in line with the provisions of both the Constitution and Election Act. It is intended to serve as a compass which shall ensure that:

UNOFFICIAL TRANSLATION

a) Political parties taking part in the 2010 General Elections are granted space and airtime to articulate their policies and manifestos through public-owned media free of charge so that the people shall be informed of their policies and manifestos and assess the quality of their aspirants.

b) State-owned media institutions efficiently broadcast the policies and manifestos of the varied political parties that are taking part in the elections during the campaign period.

To meet that goal, the Code of Conduct of the Zanzibar Electoral Commission for State-owned Media directs as follows:

1. PROVISION OF AIR TIME TO ALLOW BROADCASTING OF PARTY CAMPAIGN PROGRAMMES THROUGH GOVERNMENT RADIO AND TELEVISION

Each party competing in the election shall be allocated specific days and time for broadcasting their programmes during the campaign period. However, such programmes need to be recorded in a professionally accepted manner. Script of the broadcasts has to be presented to the directors of the broadcasting stations some 72 hours prior to the moment of airing the relevant programme.

Any political party that is unable to utilize its allotted air time, shall be compelled to give a 48-hour advance notice to the directors of the relevant radio and television stations so that the allocated time is utilized for airing other professional broadcasts.

2. COMMENCEMENT OF PARTY CAMPAIGN BROADCASTS

a) Campaign broadcasts by registered political parties that shall take part in the 2010 elections through national radio and television shall commence on September 11, 2010 and end on October 30, 2010.

UNOFFICIAL TRANSLATION

- b) The political parties involved in the General Elections shall be allocated equitable air time to broadcast their programmes through state radio and television.
- c) Political parties shall be responsible for recording their programmes at any preferred location and presenting the recorded broadcast to the Directors of the radio and television stations within the time specified by this code of conduct. Parties that choose to record their programmes at radio and television station studios shall be compelled to submit written requests to those institutions.
- d) Parties that shall wish to record their programmes with radio and television stations, shall be obliged to submit written requests to the relevant media organs.
- e) In line with the broadcasting time-table, each party participating in the General Elections and which will field a Presidential candidate, shall be granted 25 minutes to broadcast their programmes/pronouncements once a week through public radio and television.
- f) In line with the time-table, each party taking part in the General Election but which will not field a Presidential candidate but only the House of Representatives and local government candidates, shall be granted 15 minutes to broadcast their programmes/pronouncements once a week.

3. ALLOCATION OF SPACE IN NATIONAL PRINT MEDIA

- a) All parties involved in the General Elections shall be allocated half-page space once a week in the national newspaper on equitable basis. Political parties have to submit their articles to the government newspaper three days prior to publication date.
- b) Political parties shall be obliged to prepare their articles and submit them to a government newspaper three days prior to publication.

QUALITIES OF POLITICAL PARTY NEWS IN MEDIA ORGANS

- a) The state media organs must ensure that the reports that are broadcast on the political parties in news programmes are not slanderous, adhere to professional journalism standards, are both new and true, and are attractive and correct.
- b) News and programmes intended to be aired by state-owned institutions can be in the form of dialogue, reports of campaign meetings, and, in relation to the situation, such reports should both be free and brief.
- c) The news media should desist from propelling politicians who want to use public radio and television to dramatise their activities like making personal donations, attending sports events and public meetings, things which are normally not related with election campaigns.
- d) The media institutions should well be aware that politics is stage-managed, they should thus refrain from preparing programmes that will foment hatred and division.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF POLITICAL PARTIES

- a) Political parties should respect, accept and abide to the schedule of preparing and submitting their campaign broadcast programmes that have to be aired by state media within the time and date that have been set by agreement with the Chief Editor.
- b) Alternatively, political parties must accept to prepare and submit their articles for publication by the government print media within the time and date that have been set in agreement with the Chief Editor.
- c) During the election campaign period, political parties vying for elected positions may request the public media institutions (radio, television and print media) to air/publish announcements on political rallies that they shall organise.

- d) Each political party shall as expressly as possible appoint an officer/representative who shall be communicating with both the electoral commission and government media on implementation of this code of conduct in relation to the existing schedule.
- e) Each officer/representative who has been appointed specifically for facilitating the implementation of this Code has to submit his mobile phone number and e-mail address to the Press Officer of the Zanzibar Electoral Commission.
- f) Each political party must ensure that any programme recorded for broadcasting purposes does not bear content that in one way or the other could ignite hatred, friction and misunderstanding among the people and residents of Zanzibar. In addition, they must understand that any broadcast does not provoke bad feelings or enmity between residents of Zanzibar or those of the United Republic of Tanzania and elsewhere.
- g) Publications such as posters, messages, brochures, print-outs and pictures must be verified by the electoral commission and should bear the name and address of both the publisher and printer.
- h) Publications, images and advertisements of the political parties should be devoid of false pronouncements, sedition and slanderous language.

RESPONSIBILITY OF GOVERNMENT MEDIA INSTITUTIONS

- a) State-owned media organs are compelled to abide to the agreed procedure of recording and airing the election campaign programmes of political parties.
- b) Chief executives of public media institutions shall be compelled to scrutinise programmes submitted by political parties so as to ensure that their content is not in conflict with legal provisions.

UNOFFICIAL TRANSLATION

- c) A public-owned media house is prohibited from airing a campaign programme of a political party just before or soon after another party has broadcast its programme.
- d) Media organs have the responsibility to abide to ethical requirements. They should not favour any particular party in reporting election news or victimise any political party or candidate when availing broadcasting opportunities.
- e) News programmes, interviews and other reports have to be presented without bias, neither should they be projected in a manner that is hostile to any political party or candidate.
- f) Media organs have the right to reject any programme that has been recorded contrary to the professional requirements or which contains scandalous language.
- g) Any state-owned media that shall refuse to broadcast an announcement or programme of any political party, shall be compelled to inform the relevant party in a period not exceeding 24 hours about the decision and the reasons for the rejection. The affected political party shall be allowed to change or edit its programme's content and re-submit it to the media organ within 18 hours.
- h) The mass media have the duty of being fair to all political parties in the broadcasting of all their programmes throughout the campaign period.
- i) The news media institutions are allowed to sell the excess broadcasting time of any political party, including availing them time for live broadcasts.
- j) A government newspaper is allowed to sell extra space to any political party or their representatives.
- k) News organisations have the right to reject any live coverage if there is proof that such broadcasts shall contain foul words and scandalous language.
- l) All video/audio cassettes of campaign broadcasts and announcements are preserved by the media stations for a period of 90 days since the day of the first broadcast. A political party that shall need an extra copy for stocking in its archives shall communicate with the chief executives of the relevant organs to secure a recorded version.

- m) Political parties shall be responsible for acquiring video/audio tapes needed for recording of campaign programmes that shall be recorded and aired by national radio and television on weekly basis.

THE MEDIA ORGANS COMMUNICATIONS COMMITTEE

- a) The campaign programmes shall be monitored and controlled by the Media Organs Communication Committee.
- b) The Committee is empowered to invite representatives of political parties that have fielded presidential candidates in the course of executing its duties.
- c) The Committee shall not be compelled to make its decisions simply because a strong argument has been presented either by the Government or representatives of political parties.
- d) The Committee shall hear grievances on violation of procedures related to broadcasts made through the media institutions by political party candidates.
- e) The Committee shall attempt to solve all disputes in any manner it regards as appropriate and shall take effective steps of ordering the rectification of deficiencies that have emerged.
- f) The Committee is obliged to submit its report to the Electoral Commission after completion of the 2010 General Elections.

UTILISATION OF AIR TIME

- a) Any political party that shall fail to utilise its allotted airtime shall be compelled to give an official account to the relevant chief executive of a media organisation within 36 hours.
- b) Any allocated time that has been wasted by a political party for no basic reason shall not be compensated.

UNOFFICIAL TRANSLATION

- c) Once technical problems occur at a radio or television station, political parties that have suffered loss of their allotted time have the right to broadcast compensating radio or television programmes at prime hours.

SPECIAL AIR TIME ALLOCATED TO PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

- a) Each presidential candidate shall be availed an extra 10 minutes on the eve of election day so as to address voters and members of the general public.
- b) Each presidential candidates shall be granted extra space in the government-owned newspaper for publication of his article on the final day of the campaign.

END OF THE CAMPAIGN BROADCASTS/ARTICLES

This Code of Conduct shall be effective starting September 11, 2010 until October 30, 2010. All political parties participating in the 2010 Zanzibar General Elections are requested to abide to this arrangement.

The programme for actualising the arrangement is attached to this Code of Conduct.

Salum Kassim Ali
Director of Elections,
Zanzibar Electoral Commission.
